Chinese Traditional Clothing 中国传统服装

Overview

Traditional Chinese clothes were an evolution of their long, loose, straight-cut jackets and pants or gowns. They reflected traditional Chinese aesthetics, philosophy, and social values as they changed through over 3,000 years of history. Each country in the world has its own unique traditional clothes, from which people are able to distinguish one country from another, and so it has been with China. The Hanfu, Zhongshan suit (Mao suit), Tang suit, and cheongsam (qipao) are the four most distinctive types of traditional Chinese clothing.
